The answer is simple: you must princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944]. However, the way you approach this modification depends entirely on whether you booked as a solo traveler, as part of a group, or with a non-refundable deposit. This guide reveals three specific scenarios that most online articles ignore, along with the exact questions to ask when you princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944].

Scenario One: The Solo Traveler Who Wants to Share a Cabin

Solo cruisers often pay a 100% single supplement. If you booked a cabin for one and now wish to princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944] to share that cabin, you are entitled to a refund of the single supplement. This is the best-kept secret in cruising. When you princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944], the agent must recalculate your fare from single occupancy to double occupancy. For example, if you paid $2,000 as a solo and the double occupancy rate for the same cabin is $1,200 per person, you will pay a new total of $2,400 for two people. That means you actually owe an additional $400 when you princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944]. But if the double rate is $1,000 per person, your new total is $2,000—the same as your solo fare—so adding a passenger costs nothing extra. In that case, to princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944] is essentially free. Never assume adding a passenger always increases cost. Call and check.

Scenario Two: The Group Booking That Exceeds Cabin Capacity

Group bookings (five or more cabins) have different rules. If you need to princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944] to a group reservation, the group leader or travel agent must be the one to call. Princess Cruises will not allow an individual group member to princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944] directly. Why? Because group contracts include a “deadline for name submissions,” typically 60 to 90 days before sailing. If you attempt to princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944] after that deadline, the new passenger may be placed into a separate “individual booking” at a higher rate, even though they will sail with the group. This creates chaos at check-in. To avoid this, the group leader must princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944] and request a group amendment form. Once signed and returned, the new passenger is officially part of the group. Without this form, even if you princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944] ten times, the addition will not be recognized.

Scenario Three: The Non-Refundable Deposit Trap

If you booked a non-refundable fare and later decide to princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944], the entire booking may be canceled and rebooked at current rates. Some agents will warn you; others will not. Therefore, before you princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944], ask this exact question: “Will my non-refundable deposit be forfeited if I add a passenger?” The correct answer is no—if you are only adding (not replacing) a passenger, Princess policy allows a princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944] without canceling the original deposit. However, if you are also changing the sail date or ship, that triggers forfeiture. So when you princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944], explicitly state: “This is a pure addition. No other changes.” Then record the agent’s name and confirmation number.

The Hidden Fee: Port Charges and Taxes

Every time you princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944], port taxes for the new passenger are non-negotiable. These range from $80 to $300 depending on itinerary. Unlike cruise fare, port taxes are never waived. When you princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944], ask for a breakdown of government taxes versus cruise fare. Some passengers have successfully princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944] and discovered that port taxes for a third passenger are actually lower than for the first two, because some ports charge per cabin, not per person. For example, Juneau, Alaska charges a flat $8 per cabin. If you princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944], the third person pays $0 extra in Juneau taxes. Knowing this helps you challenge incorrect charges.

The 24-Hour Cooling-Off Period

This is ideal if the new passenger backs out. Simply call back within 24 hours of your original princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944] and request a cancellation of the addition. What About Medallion Shipping?

The Princess Medallion is shipped to each passenger's home address 20 to 30 days before sailing. If you princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944] within 19 days of departure, the new passenger will not receive a Medallion by mail. Instead, when you princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944], the agent will mark the new passenger for "port pickup." At embarkation, they simply show their passport and receive a Medallion at the counter. This adds 10 to 15 minutes to boarding, but it is free. Do not let Medallion concerns stop you from calling to princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944].

Final Pro Tip: The Supervisor Override

If an agent says you cannot princess Cruise add passenger Call [+1833 624 0944] because the sailing is sold out, ask for a supervisor.
